

URANUS SEXTILE NATAL MARS

It is well known in Astrology that Uranus and Mars do not work well together. Both planets can indicate sudden and erratic, aggressive actions based on the desire to create change or the need to take action because, in many cases, something is standing in our way forward.

The energy of Uranus and Mars together can present itself as an accident especially when working with sharp tools, equipment or faced with little to no alternatives.

When speaking of Natal Mars, the planet that is being stimulated by transiting Uranus, the houses involved will be very significant in determining what areas of life are being affected. Although aggressive action is often part of the profile, there will be lessons learned from this experience and in some cases the actions taken will move you in the direction that you need to go. You can become awakened to the area of life that needs change, and, over time, understand why you did what you did or alternative, why situations became apparent and that these conditions are what made you do what you either had to do or will do.

Uranus always takes you where you need to go usually because the current conditions in life no longer suit your evolutionary growth or path in life. Uranus awakens you to new horizons, pushes you to change direction or move in a new direction and stimulates action.

Mars pushes us into action and often in abrupt manners or without thought or due diligence. This rush ahead can cause misfortunes as we did not take the necessary time to weigh out our options before jumping.

In most cases, the sextile aspect (60° of separation between planets or between planets and angles in the chart) is considered a positive aspect bringing forth opportunities and with a personal push, we can gain on some level. Most sextiles require us to act to reap rewards but, in this case, not on impulse. Without our interaction, in most cases, nothing will materialize.

There likely will be much learned from our experience and if this aspect is approaching, being aware of the destructive or impending potential that can exist without proper preparation is important. In some cases, a time for preparation is not taken because it happens so suddenly without warning. However, if you do have time to prepare and digest what is in front of you, be careful. Do not operate a vehicle when angry, avoid confrontation, and don't make hasty decisions.

Uranus sextile natal Mars has great potential if you do your due diligence and use caution. Remember, however, you must act to utilize the energy available.