

PLUTO IN AQUARIUS

Transiting Pluto will be in the sign of Aquarius from March to June of 2023 and again from January to early September of 2024. It will permanently move into the sign of Aquarius in November 2024 for about 20 years.

Pluto's main function in Astrology is to shed any unwanted or unnecessary elements and to transform things over time. Pluto works beneath the surface and brings long overdue change although often not before some power struggles have played their part. Pluto transforms and initiates evolutionary growth by breaking down structures that have outlived their worth. There is often a period of deep reflection that leads to necessary change. There are no halfway measures when it comes to the energies of Pluto. Something must die for something new to begin. It represents an ending of sorts and then a new beginning.

The sign Aquarius is often connected with humanitarian concerns. Aquarius is progressive and has a vision for the future with new ideas. The intension is to bestow the world with new ideas and involve others in this progression. Aquarius has a vision and wants to make the world a better place for everyone. The mission is a noble one with the general good of all intended.

Aquarius provides excellent reasoning abilities with a compassionate view although the theme behind Aquarius can be rebellious, and it will push against any type of restraint. Freedom is what Aquarius stands for and any sign of complacency to move forward is not what this is about. Breaking away from structures that no longer work and finding a logical resolution to any problem that plagues mankind is what Aquarius strives to achieve.

Pluto in Capricorn was rather cold and was all about business and building structures that stand the test of time. Now these structures, which can also be related to government and established systems need change as they no longer work effectively. Letting go and moving forward may be a struggle, especially in the early stages of this evolutionary quest we now are starting to undertake.

Over time, Pluto will move us in a different direction where humanity can recover from the past and move forward with great intent. Much work will need to be done but much will remain beneath the surface and hidden for some time before we begin to see the effects.

Any transitional period can be arduous, and the past can fight to try to hold on. It will take willful people to do the work required and the ripple effects are already being felt. The old ways will not disappear without a fight but the new fights ahead are not about war and aggression, they are about peace and gentle reasoning with progressive action.

According to Astrology, we are at a critical stage in mankind's development and have come to a crucial time to help with the transformation of this new age. We are the forerunners, and we will work within the framework of what surrounds us and formulate a path forward enticing the general public to help and follow along the path of regeneration that is so badly needed in our war-torn world.
