

TRANSITING SATURN TRINE NATAL MARS

Saturn has to do with structure and discipline and is known as the teacher of the Zodiac. It speaks of hard work, sometimes restriction and delays, and has its endeavors tied to business or working towards achievement.

If, for example, Saturn were in Pisces, Saturn pushes us towards what is material and real while Pisces can be tied to service. When distressful situations surface, Pisces can have the tendency to avoid this at any cost. Together they will force us to look at life from a deep perspective and although intuition plays into this scenario, reality will also surface.

When Saturn makes a Trine to Mars, (Mars being the planet of aggressive action and Saturn being restrictive and can create obstacles) there is a degree of hesitation to our achievement push. Part of us wants to push ahead with great enthusiasm and another part of us says we need to slow down and make sure we are not only ready to work and move ahead but that there is little chance for mistakes along the way. Saturn forces us to rethink what we might be venturing towards, and it can also make us worry about the validity of these endeavors. So, there may be a push and pull situation at hand.

With Saturn trine natal mars, we may be often presents with opportunities and easy flow even when Saturn is involved although the energy does not flow without diligent work. There are things in place that can help us move in our intended direction and chances are with the right preparation, we will succeed in our endeavors. There may be some stumbling blocks along the road to overcome, but this helps us create the perfect plan and will also make sure that everything is done right the first time.

Look to the natal positioning of your Mars by house and aspect as this will provide you with further indicators of the area of life involved and how challenging or how easy the flow to achievement will be for you. Saturn's natal position will also give you more information along with its transiting position.

With the aspect of Transiting Saturn trine Natal Mars in your chart, the time will be ripe for you to advance with your objectives. Move forward with positive expectations and take your time.